6.2.2018 TRUSTS AND INSOLVENCY CONFERENCE

This talk considered the relevance of the proprietary theory/obligation theory in relation to the operation of trusts law in practice in relation not only to insolvency but private trusts generally and to what extent legal theory generally can or cannot shed light on underlying questions of trusts law in practice generally and also the use of Quistclose trust in insolvency cases.

SPEAKERS: Graham Sellers, David Dennis Lecturer in Law

Feb 2018 THE LAST IN LINE: OCCUPIERS AND THIRD PARTIES. TOO MANY STEPS. TOO FAR?

This lecture considered whether the way in which the courts currently interpret and apply legislation in priority disputes between proprietary occupiers and third parties misrepresents the policy balance intended by the legislation. Or, in other words, are judges favouring money over homes.

This conference was delivered in conjunction with Martin Dixon, Professor of the Law of Real Property, University of Cambridge and Liverpool Law School, the University of Liverpool.
